EDMONTON BULLETIN (June 1st, 1893)

EDMONTON VS PARRY SOUND.

James Bell who came from Parry Sound with the colony in the spring of last year is one of the many members of that colony who are well satisfied with the change made and with the Edmonton district generally. He gave the BULLETIN his opinions and experiences on the subject as follows: On his arrival early in April of 1892, he spent some time looking for a location and afterwards hired on the farm of R. McKernan. This farm had 40 acres in oats and barley which yielded 3,000 bushels of grain. As to the quality of the grain, seamless sacks which would hold two bushels or two and a quarter bushels of oats in Parry Sound would hold three and a quarter bushels of oats by weight from the threshing here. Eleven acres of barley yielded 700 bushels. All the wheat in the settlement was not good last year, but Henry Quebec of the Parry Sound colony had good wheat, W. Walker whose farm is near where most of the Parry Sound colony located had good wheat which he sold at the roller mill for 65 cents a bushel, about ten cents a bushel over the highest Manitoba price at that time, the mill giving the local farmer the benefit of the freight rate from Manitoba. Oats in the fall were worth 20c to 25c. They are worth 50c now. Barley was worth 20c to 25c in the fall and is also worth 50 cents now. Henry Quebec had four acres of potatoes last season the crop from which he sold at 80 cents a bushel. Some of the cattle which Mr. Bell fed last winter were sold this spring for beef to be exported to British Columbia at $3.60 per hundred live weight. These cattle were fattened on marsh hay and a little chopped feed, and spent the winter in open sheds and yards, none of them being stalled. As to the country being frosty, low flat lands may be subject to frost, but high clear ground is less subject to frost than the Parry Sound district. Wheat grows much better here than in Parry Sound. As to the danger of the market being overstocked, Mr. Bell says he would much rather live in a country where the farmer could grow more stuff than he could get rid of than in a country in which the farmers could not grow enough to live on. It will be noticed in this connection that Mr. Bell has been working since he came to Edmonton. Doing something to help himself and not expecting the country to help him whether he would or not. It will be found on investigation that nearly every one who comes to this district and follows this course is well satisfied with the results attained and with his prospects. It is those who expect somebody else to do the working who are dissatisfied.

TO HUDSON'S BAY.

J. B. Tyrrell, geologist of the Canadian geological survey, left on Monday on one of the most remarkable exploring trips that have been undertaken in Canada in the interests of science for many years. His project is to traverse the Barren Grounds from Lake Athabasca to Hudson's Bay by one route and return by another route through the same region within the present year. The Barren Grounds are of immense area extending from the basin of the Mackenzie on the south and west to the Arctic ocean and Hudson's Bay on the north and east, about 1,000 miles from south east to northwest by 500 from southwest to northeast. The character of the region is expressed by its name. It is called barren because it is beyond the climatic line within which timber will grow. Beyond this fact and the further fact that it is the home of the musk ox and so called reindeer, and along the sea coast of the Esquimaux, practically nothing is known of it. There is only one trading post that can be said to be within its area, Fort Rae. There is no trade route through or near it. The Indians go from the woods to hunt over it and the Esquimaux go inward from the sea, but it belongs to neither, and is no man's land. What knowledge of it exists was chiefly acquired at the time of the attempts in the latter part of the previous century and the earlier part of the present one to discover a Northwest passage through the Arctic sea. This led to several partial explorations of the region, chiefly by rescue parties, but the only white man who ever travelled through and described it was Samuel Hearne, who in the latter part of the 17th century penetrated from Fort Churchill to the Coppermine river which empties into the Arctic Ocean, and returned to Churchill. Three years ago Warburton M. Pike of Victoria, B. C. made an excursion into the Barren Grounds from the eastern end of Great Slave Lake towards the Arctic ocean in search of musk ox, and added materially to the information existing regarding the region. Mr. Tyrrell's route is far distant from that of Mr. Pike and as projected goes across the least known part of the whole region, furthest from any trading post, and where no white man but Hearne has ever been. The route to be followed by Mr. Tyrrell will cross that of which Hearne has left an account at right angles, so that Hearne's observations will be of little use to Mr. Tyrrell. His route as laid down is as follows: Leaving Edmonton to reach the Athabasca river at the Landing by trail, 90 miles. Thence he goes by canoe down the Athabasca river 400 miles to the lake of the same name. Thence to the east end of the lake and up the river which enters it from the east 300 miles. This part of the route is along a much used trade route and is therefore well known. But at a certain point on the river entering Lake Athabasca Mr. Tyrrell will leave that stream by one of its tributaries coming from the north. From this point nothing is definitely known of the country for the thousand miles which Mr. Tyrrell will have to travel to reach Chesterfield Inlet, a northernly arm of Hudson's Bay, which is his objective point on the bay. He expects to follow the river which he first takes up to the height of land between the basins of the Mackenzie and of Hudson's Bay. Then to find water flowing north-eastward which will lead to Hudson's Bay. All that he has upon which to base the supposition that there is a practicable route is Indian report, and as the Indians have ceased to travel through that region, this does not seem to be the best possible authority. However, Mr. Tyrrell is so confident of success that he not only expects to reach Chesterfield Inlet this season but also to return to Lake Athabasca by another and more southerly route, also across the Barren Grounds. In his travels he is accompanied by his brother J.W. Tyrrell, who accompanied Lieut. Gordon's Alert expedition to Hudson's Bay some years ago, and who then acquired a knowledge of the Esquimaux language, which he now hopes to turn to account in travelling through the Esquimaux country. Besides the Messrs. Tyrrell the party will include John Flett of Prince Albert and four Caughnawaga Indians as canoe men.

A REPLY TO AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

Which is the best and cheapest Dry Goods Store in Town? is the question now frequently asked by the Settlers, who have recently arrived in this district. In answer to this important question, I would respectfully but emphatically reply, the

MANCHESTER HOUSE.

Dealing as I do almost exclusively in Dry Goods, I have always on hand a larger and better assorted stock than any house in Town. Prices too are cut so fine, that it is frequently remarked by those who seek quotations "Why you are selling as cheap as they do down east, and in fact in some cases cheaper."

GENERAL NEWS.

The Calgary town council arranged to interview Hon. Mr. Patterson, postmaster general, on the subject of the location of the Calgary postoffice on the occasion of his recent trip through the Northwest; but he had no time for them, and the interview did not occur. Query, what do the ministers visit the Northwest for if not for information?

The Canadian Engineer says that the Dominion bridge company of Montreal has secured the contract of building some 25 bridges on the Newfoundland railway against competition from England, Belgium and other countries. And also that the Crossen car works have secured the contract of building the passenger cars for the same railway.

Russell, Manitoba, has a paper, the Chronicle. The first number is to hand dated May 25th. Part of its title is "Free Trade advertiser." It is published near the home of free trade Senator Bolton, but of course he has nothing to do with it any more than N. F. Davin has to do with the Regina Leader. It is very neat in appearance and newsworthy as well, and its editorial articles are ably written.

Moose Jaw Times, May 29: "Up to date twenty-four carloads of grading material for the 'Soo' line have been unloaded at Pasqua. Mr. Strevel the leading contractor landed on Wednesday with seventeen cars of material, one of live stock for slaughtering purposes, and a gang of 58 men. They have commenced work about 4 miles south of Pasqua. The 'Soo' line will join the main line one and one-half miles west of Pasqua. The present siding at Pasqua will be moved to the junction, and it is rumored that the old station at Regina will be moved to the junction."

Valuable Hay Privilege.

Tenders will be received until 15th June for the exclusive privilege of cutting hay for the season of 1900 on the unsold portion of the Hudson's Bay Company's reserve at Edmonton. A deposit of $20,000 to accompany each tender; this sum to be returned should tender not be accepted, or forfeited to the company should tender be accepted and balance due thereon not paid by July 1st. Apply to the Commissioner, Hudson's Bay Company, Winnipeg.
